

The Partnership for Resilient Communities (PRC) strengthens urban communities by supporting local leaders and advancing innovative strategies that build lasting resilience.

Project Objectives

PRC drives change in partner communities by:

- Enhancing Resilience: Promoting physical and economic strength in communities facing environmental challenges.
- Bridging Resource Gaps: Ensuring those most affected by extreme weather have a voice in leadership and decision-making.
- Transforming Urban Resilience: Shaping a fair and balanced urban resilience landscape across the U.S.
- Sharing Best Practices: Disseminating insights, policies and practices from PRC partners and community leaders.
- Fostering Collaboration: Advancing policy engagement, local partnerships, and community-centered development.

PRC's Impact

Cohort members implement a variety of projects tailored to their community's unique needs — determined through feasibility studies, surveys, interviews and community meetings.
